None of the processes were in deadlock/livelock. In summary, we observed that the TA processes read/write the marking of questions. Whilst writing to the rubric, no other TA/process can do the same. The semaphore ensured the counter for the next exam to be graded gets updated one at a time. Lastly when the max number of exams is reached, the program finishes and terminates.